MIAMI'S FIESTA

In Miami, the sun is always shining, and there's always a reason to celebrate! Mateo's house was full of music and the smell of Abuela's famous empanadas.

"Mateo, stop dancing and help me with the cooler!"
Abuela laughed.

"I can't help it, Abuela! Argentina is playing at the Hard Rock Stadium today!"

They drove across the bridge, seeing the blue water sparkle like diamonds.

"Look, Abuela! Even the boats have flags!" Mateo pointed to a sailboat flying the sun-symbol of Argentina.

The "Hard Rock Hero" stood tall. He was the coolest stadium in the world! He wore a facade painted with bright tropical leaves and huge "sunglasses" made of his white roof canopy.

BIENVENIDOS

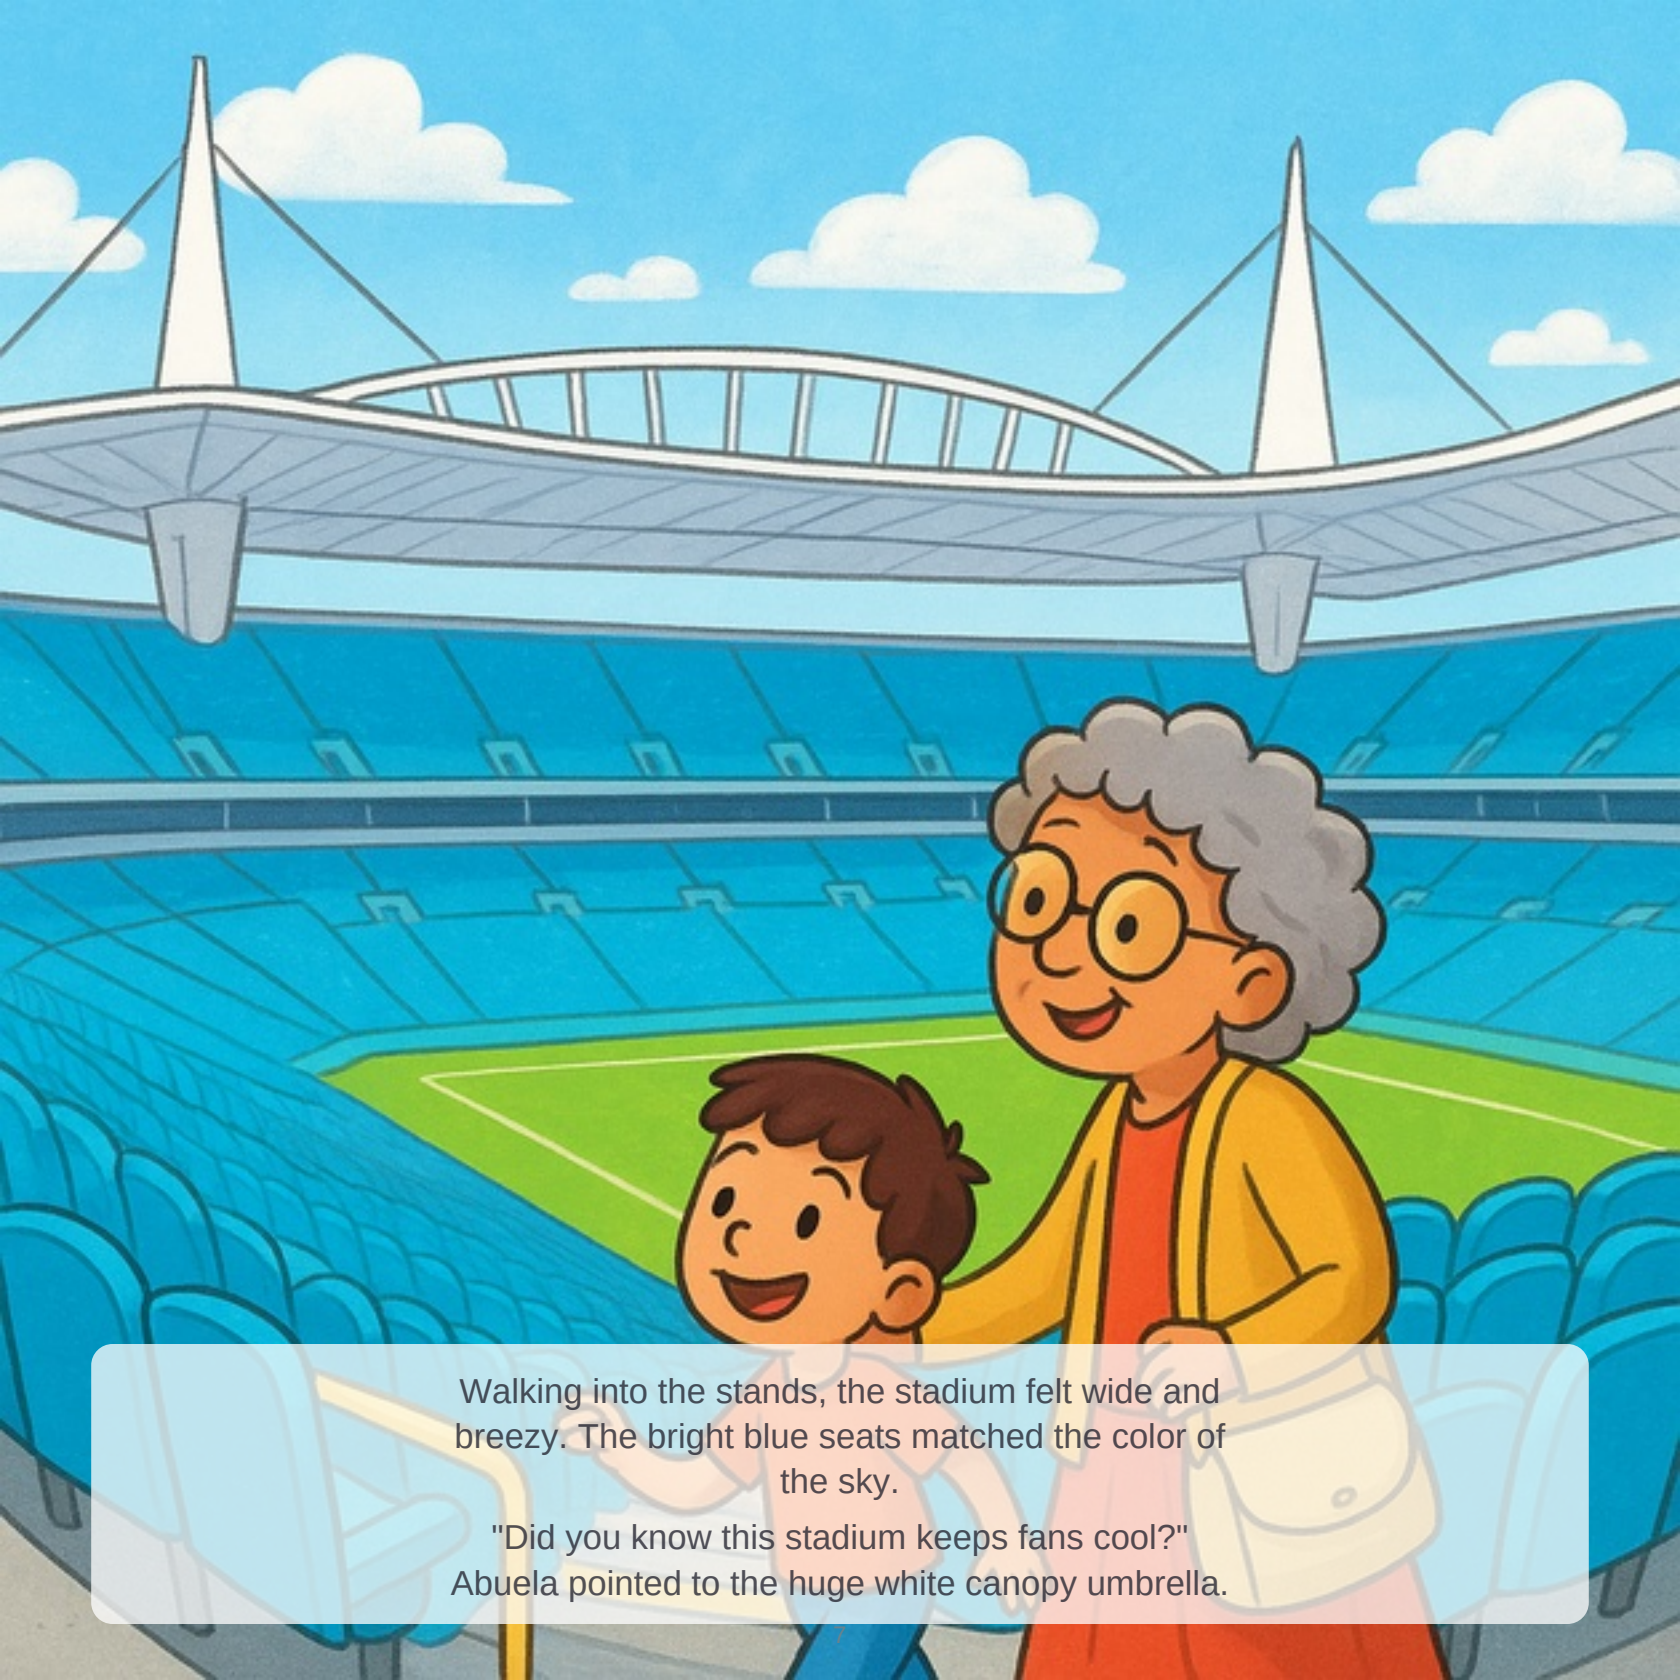

The stadium giant adjusted his sunglasses as if to say, "Let's get this party started!" "Bienvenidos!" a neon sign on his wall flashed. The energy was as warm as the Miami sun.

Outside the gates, the "Fan Zone" was a sea of colors. A DJ played lively music, and fans from Argentina and Mexico were dancing together.

"The World Cup is the world's biggest party, Mateo," Abuela said.

Walking into the stands, the stadium felt wide and breezy. The bright blue seats matched the color of the sky.

"Did you know this stadium keeps fans cool?"
Abuela pointed to the huge white canopy umbrella.

HARD ROCK STADIUM

The pre-game show was a splash! Fountains sprayed water high into the air, making rainbows in the sunshine. The Hard Rock Hero flashed his neon pink and teal lights.

Finally, Team Argentina walked out! The crowd went wild. Mateo held his sign high, screaming at the top of his lungs. The stadium's corner spikes vibrated with excitement.

TWEET! The game began! Argentina's players moved the ball like they were dancing on the grass. Mexico was just as fast, their green jerseys flashing like light.

GOALLLL!

Suddenly, the Argentinian star player took a shot from far away. ZOOM! The ball curled into the corner of the net. GOALLLLLLL! Confetti rain fell from the canopy!

Between periods, Mateo enjoyed a sweet mango-on-a-stick. "Soccer is a language everyone speaks," Abuela said. Mateo had made friends with a boy in a Mexico jersey.

The next period began as the sky turned the color of cotton candy. The Hard Rock Hero turned on his neon lights — bright pink, electric blue, and sunny yellow.

Mexico scored! A beautiful shot that zipped past the goalie. SWISH! The score was 1-1. Mateo clapped for the Mexican players. They were very good!

THUMP-THUMP GOAL!

The final minutes were full of tension. The crowd began a rhythmic chant. The Hard Rock Hero's walls pulsed with light, matching the heartbeat of the fans.

Argentina took a powerful shot. CLANG! It hit the post and bounced away. "So close!" Mateo cried. Everyone was on the edge of their seats!

TWEET! TWEET! TWEET! The match was over — a tie!
Mateo watched as the players swapped jerseys. "It was a great fiesta," Abuela said.

As they left, Mateo and his new friend Diego practiced their moves together. In Miami, the World Cup is about making new friends and sharing the joy.

Leaving the stadium, Mateo looked back. The Hard Rock Hero was glowing in neon pink and green. "Goodnight, Hero," Mateo whispered.

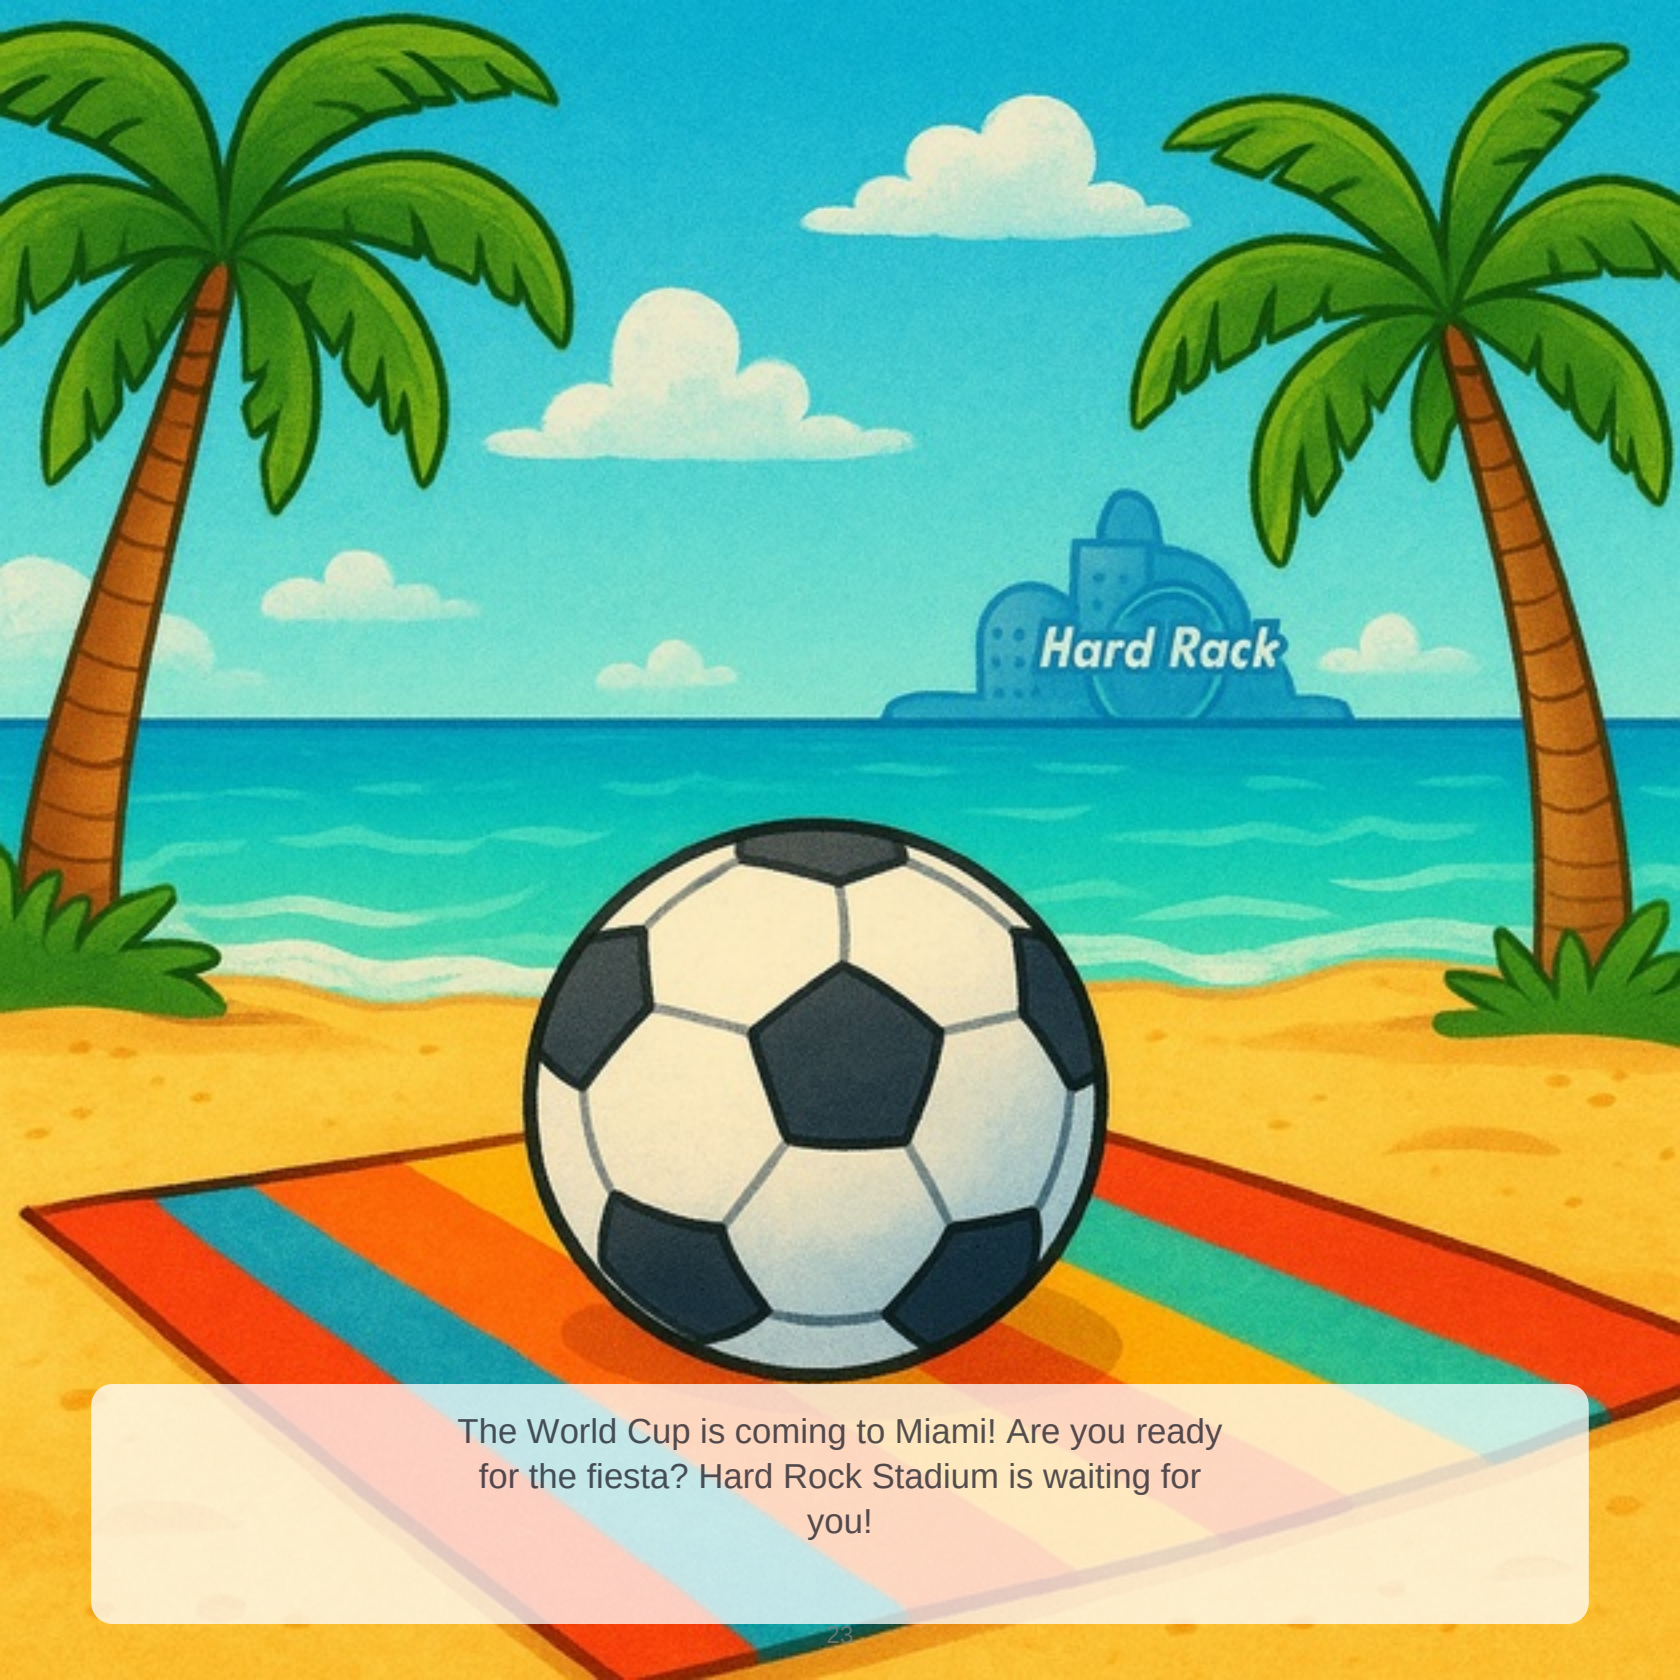

Back at home, Mateo couldn't stop smiling. He looked at the photo of him and Abuela at the stadium. A day he would never forget!

Mateo fell asleep to the sound of Abuela's music.
He dreamed of scoring the winning goal in a stadium made of light.

The fans were gone, and the fiesta was over for now. The Hard Rock Hero settled down for a rest. Ready for the next match!
